

Doctoral and Postdoctoral positions

for biological and related field scientists

We are looking for candidates interested to conduct a research project in immunooncology at the Malopolska Centre of Biotechnology of the Jagiellonian University, Krakow, Poland, one of the leading scientific institutions in polish biotechnology.

We offer the possibility to expand your interest in science in a dynamic, young research group in an interesting research project of broad impact on current topics of immune system interaction with cancer. The research is financed by the National Centre of Science in the framework of OPUS project (2018-2020).

We are looking for applicants for whom science is their passion and an important element of life. We offer exceptional research facilities and research funding to carry out a demanding and broad range scientific project. Offering a competitive salary, we expect hard work, responsibility and self initiative in the conducted studies.

A detailed information on the project and the information how to apply can be found at: www.crystallab.pl under „Job” subpage.

Additional information can be obtained at the e-mail provided at the webpage.